A “Monumental” Task

Our 1st grade class has really been taking a hands on approach to learning about America. In Social Studies they have been learning about the significance of monuments to honor our American ideals and significant figures in American history. It is one thing to read about our national monuments, but Ms. Murphy took their learning to a deeper level and had the students actually create their own models of national monuments with clay. Check out their versions of the Lincoln Memorial, the Washington Memorial, the Statue of Liberty and Mount Rushmore. What a fun and engaging lesson!
